Please describe your pet's personality, likes, dislikes etc...

I rescued Trixie Doodle (then named Diva) after my neighbor abandoned her in the middle of summer in Texas. I found her drinking water from a rusty, leaky faucet outside my apartment complex's laundry room and she immediately came up and rubbed against my legs and purred. The owner was there and saw me pet her and asked if I wanted her because he was moving that day (in 30 minutes, to be precise) and was otherwise just going to leave her there. So of course I took her.

Doodle is one of the sweetest cats I've ever met. She LOVES to snuggle and will sleep with you all night. All she wants is a bit of love and she will reward you with so much more in return. She is very playful and will play with almost anything, but her favorites are fluffy things on strings being bounced around (like a feather or fuzzy toy). She runs after me as I'm pattering around the house and looks like a chunky little rocket with zoomies, it's so cute! She is food oriented and will love you forever if you give her wet food and crunchy treats (her favorites are Blue Buffalo). Doodle loves to be outside, though all of my cats are indoor only unless leashed. She would LOVE to have a yard or balcony that she can explore and get fresh air daily. I tried leash training her, but she just stiffens and falls over and won't move until I take the harness off lol. She loves rolling in dirt, but she's never been in snow, so I don't know how she'll react to that (we moved here from Texas). Like most cats, she likes getting into cupboards and boxes and other small places, as well as finding the tallest vantage point from which to watch the world.

Is this cat/dog good with other animals (cats/dogs)? if no, please give some details.

Doodle spent the first two years of her life living on the street and as a result is very wary of other cats. She's lived with me and my 3 other cats for over 2 years now, but she still doesn't get along with them. She isn't usually the instigator; it's my other cats that start it, she just defends herself. But she doesn't let them get close enough to smell her and hisses if they do come too close, so she's just not comfortable around other cats. I've only had dogs around her a few times, but she always hides until they leave. I was really hoping all my cats would eventually get along, but Doodle is miserable always being on guard, and she deserves a home where she can be more comfortable.

In short, Trixie Doodle would be happiest in a home with no other cats or dogs, or just one very friendly one.
